CONCERN FOR ENVIRONMENT

The whole world is witnessing the impact of Global Warming which is due to excess carbon emission and is causing ill effect on the life and health of people all over the globe. Solar Plant is one of the suitable ways to reduce carbon emission in the atmosphere caused by fuel generated energy sources.

India is endowed with solar radiation with irradiation of 4-7 kWh per day, per square meter and enjoys close to 300 sunny days annually. Solar Plant is clean, silent, limitless and free from pollution. Solar Power Plant has 25 years of life and produces energy during peak demand time with minimum operating cost. Solar Plants are modular in nature, easily scalable, can be built relatively fast and range from a few kW to MW scale.

To have a pollution free environment and to meet the scarcity of electricity, the Heritage Group of Institutions have taken a step forward by installing a 100 kWh Stand Alone Roof Top Solar Power Plant at the Heritage Complex with the assistance of WBREDA and MNRE, New Delhi, which is first of its kind in the State of West Bengal.
